

Mark Bernstein Introduction

Ladies and gentlemen, it is now my privilege to introduce you a man who has dedicated his career to energy and environmental policy...

He is a skilled educator, who is a visiting faculty member in the Department of Political Science and a member of the Future Fuels and Energy Initiative at USC, and who served as Director of the Center for Energy and the Environment at the University of Pennsylvania...

He is a renowned expert on environmental policy, who was a senior policy researcher at the RAND Corporation, is the author of Smog Alert: The Challenges of Battling Ozone Pollution, and was a principal energy policy analyst at the National Renewable Energy Laboratory in Washington, D.C....

And he is a trusted advisor, who served as Senior Energy Policy Analyst for the White House Office of Science and Technology Policy, and in the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina assisted the Housing Committee of the Mississippi Governors Commission to ensure an adequate supply of affordable housing in the Gulf Coast region.

Ladies and gentlemen please welcome environmental expert and former Senior Energy Policy Analyst for the White House, Dr. Mark Bernstein.